Because today's challenges demand smarter technology

Go on, be honest... how many older thermal printers do you have in your organisation? And do you struggle with them? They can be slow, they can break down; sometimes they won't even 'talk' to your newer devices!

But perhaps most worryingly, they can pose a significant network security risk; and surprisingly, smaller businesses are most frequently targeted in this way.

So why risk your network and data security - and struggle with the performance restrictions of older printers - when you could Trade-Up to the latest technology?
